HAVE NO MONOPOLY

It had always been my impression that my friends, the Democrats,
had a monopoly on intraparty conflicts, but recent events have convinced me that such a belief is a fraud, delusion and enare.

It seems that Republicans here
in California are rather good at
that political pastime themselves.
The squabble has developed over
the question of whether the Republicans will send an instructed or uninstructed delegation to the national convention in Cleveland. Governor Merriam for a long time daffled
with the unsound idea that he was presidential timber and had his co-
hortes out beating the brush to scare
out people who would favor his aspirations and vote for him in the convention. The idea proved to be not so hot, in fact met with an Arctic reception. Realizing the futility of the puerile plan the governor had
another brain storm and figured out
that what he could not do by direction he could by indirection. He therefore entered into an alliance
with Hearst and came out in favor
of Alf Landon of Kansas for the presidency and a delegation pledged
to support the Kansas executive in the convention.

Just a few days prior to this announcement the governor was seriously inclined to support Senator Borah of Idaho and had discussed
the possibility with his intimates
in his office in the state house.
What caused him to change his
mind and the nature of the bargain
he made with the publisher, it
would be interesting to know.

During the month that Merriam

Pinole Man Indicted By U. S. Jurors

When William Sexton of Pinole
is released from the county jail at Martinez where he is now serving
a 90-day sentence on charges of petty theft, he will be taken to San Francisco to face the Federal court
on three charges.

Yesterday a Federal grand jury indicted Sexton on charges of assault, resisting a Federal officer
and violating the migratory bird
act.

Sexton was arrested February 17
by two agents of the United States Biological Survey. The agents announced the man when he rowed ashore after shooting ducks on Pinole bay. When they attempted to arrest Sexton, police say, the Pinole man grabbed an oar and started a battle. After they had overpowered him they took him to his
cabin where he changed his clothes.
There he started another battle, officers said, seizing a rifle and an
axe. He locked himself into a room
and when officers broke down the
door he attacked them with an iron bar.

Officers allegedly found articles
stolen from the Selby Smelter in his possession.

On February 24 Sexton was taken
to Crockett where he pleaded guilty to a petty theft charge and
was sentenced to the county jail
for 90 days.

He is due to be released from the county jail within the next several days to face the more serious Federal charges.

U. S. Prisoner At Alcatraz Is Denied Freedom

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—
UP—The Circuit Court of Appeals
today upheld a ruling of the District Court of Appeals denying Hayes Van Gorder, Illinois postal
forger, a writ of habeas corpus.
Van Gorder is serving a 15-year
term at Alcatraz prison. He once escaped from Leavenworth.

The convict argued his conviction was based on vague charges.

NAZIS WILL REFUSE TO ENTER COURT

LONDON, March 18.—(UP)—Germany will refuse to submit the question of the Franco-Soviet pact's
compatibility with the Locarno
treaty to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Chancellor Adolf Hitler's confidential diplomatic advisor, said tonight.

VENISITS EDEN
Ribbentrop, here to sit with the League of Nations Council when it
votes condemnation of Germany as a treaty breaker tomorrow, visited
British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden at the Foreign Office shortly
before the Locarno treaty signatures began a new conference.

He communicated Germany's refusal to submit the treaty question
to the World Court, Ribbentrop argued.

ity between the Locarno and Fran-

French troops such as these were rushed to border fortresses.

Local Man Is Found Suicide At Tank Farm

Authorities yesterday were at a loss to advance a motive for the apparent suicide of William John Mc-Crindle, 50, of 145 South Sixteenth
street, who was found hanging from
a telegraph pole near the entrance
of the Standard Oil company tank
farm yesterday morning.

The body was discovered after 11
o'clock by E. O. Brunstead, tank farm employee. McCrindle had been dead for at least four hours.

According to Deputy Coroner W.
P. Drumme, McCrindle evidently climbed the telegraph pole by means of the step spikes and then placed a strand of wire around his neck and attached the loose end of the strand to the top spike about 15 feet above the ground, and stepped off into space. His neck was not broken.

According to information given
the coroner's office, McCrindle was
a plumber and had been out of work for the past two years. It is understood that he had recently asked for relief. Officers believe that this might have been the motive for his suicide.

Deceased leaves his son, Arthur
of Richmond a daughter, Betty, of Oakland and a brother, Robert, of Oakland.

Services Will Be Held Friday In Crash Death

Last rites will be conducted Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock for
the late Albert Richard Cruchoff, 47
year old PWA worker who was instantly killed in an automobile accident here Tuesday night.

Services will be conducted from
the Wilson and Kratzer chapel.
Cremation will be at Berkeley.

Cruchoff died instantly when he was struck by a car driven by Nathan Feldman, of San Francisco, a Ford plant employee, at Twenty-
third street and Cutting Boulevard.
Feldman is free pending investigation of the charges. He is charged with manslaughter.

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE ARE VAGUE

Mrs. Ruth McCord, ex-head
of the social service department, convicted by a jury of presenting false and fraudulent claims against the county
and who was granted a new trial on Monday, is at liberty
on $1,000 bail, pending the appeal of the district attorney
from the ruling by Judge Bray,
voiding the conviction against
her.

Bail for her release was given yesterday afternoon. She went to the county jail, which has been her
place of abode since she was returned here on February 8th by Sheriff John Miller from Salt Lake
City, gathered up her few belongings and left in the company of her father J. P. Wishon of Palo Alto.

Asked where she was going and
what she was going to do she replied that her freedom had come so

Driverless Truck Lands Two In Jail

The mystery of a "driverless"
truck that smashed into a greasing
rack at a service station at the junction of San Pablo avenue and the Dam road was a puzzle to State
highway police last night.

In the meantime, F. J. McGowan, 43, of 4225 Broadway, Oakland and Clyde Smith, of Garnet street, Oakland are in the county jail facing
charges of drunken driving while
police attempt to discover just who
was driving the truck.

The machine, loaded with four tons of rocks, failed to make the turn onto San Pablo avenue and struck the greasing rack, owned by H. E. Bradford, smashed the shed.

Alleged Leaders Of Poultry Theft Ring Arrested

MARTINEZ, March 18.—Sheriff C.
A. Hefferlan of Hillsboro, Sierra county, New Mexico today advised Sheriff John A. Miller of his arrest
at Hot Springs, N. M., of Roy Wilkins, 26, wanted here on burglary
charges and claimed by authorities
to have been involved with a gang
that perpetrated 400 burglaries in bay district counties.

Clyde O. Howell, 22, also an alleged member of a gang of poultry
thieves with Wilkins, was arrested
yesterday at Carlsbad, N. M. Both men have waived extradition.

"They were members of the biggest poultry theft ring that has operated in the bay district," Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Ralph Harrison said. "I have wired Sheriff
Hefferlan asking the arrest of Mr.
Wilkins; also believed to be in Hillsboro."

Harrison charged that the men
operated in Contra Costa, Alameda
and San Joaquin counties.

Officers here were preparing today to present extradition papers to Governor Merriam.

Authorities claim the two men
and the woman filed San Pablo as they were about to be arrested
three months ago. Personal property and poultry were abandoned. Officers say the poultry was returned
to persons who were victims of the theft ring.

National Guardsmen Are Called To Guard Pittsburgh; Fear Big Johnstown Dam Will Give Way

PITTSBURGH, (Thursday
March 19.—UP—National Guardsmen took control of flooded downtown Pittsburgh
today. All streets leading to the "Golden Triangle," center of the steel and other heavy industries, were guarded by soldiers
who challenged every person
who did not have emergency
business within the area.

The troops moved in at a time
when floods were menacing
the health and safety of 1,000, 000 residents of one of the largest industrial areas in the United States. Food and drinking water were dwindling.

PITTSBURGH, March 18.—UP—Murky, swirling flood waters of three rivers tonight poured into Pittsburgh, the nation's steel city,
bringing death, property damage
estimated above $12,000,000 and a
threat of power and light failure.
The rich golden triangle, Pittsburgh's "nerve center," was inundated by the rising tide.

The flood waters pushed steadily
toward the higher ground of the downtown business section, site of the city's banks and offices, as the steel concerns that made Pittsburgh famous.

LOWER STATIONS OUT
The flood waters of the Ohio and
its two tributaries, the Monongahela and the Allegheny,
put two power stations of Branson's
Island out of order this afternoon.
Already three have been reported dead. Conservative estimates of property damage placed it as "twice that of the 1907 flood." The damage then, when Pittsburgh was
a much smaller city, was $6,000, 000.

FIRE BREAK OUT
Dangerous fires broke out. Firemen, standing waist deep in the swirling currents, attempted to battle them under almost impossible conditions. Oil company blazes
were accompanied by terrific explosions of oil drums.

Business was disrupted.
The most seriously affected district was the famed triangle, formed by the confluence of the three flooded rivers, in which is located
most of the big department stores.
Almost in this rich zone are Pittsburgh's loftiest buildings, business
houses and industrial plants.

PLANTS CLOSED
Many of the steel plants are on the "outside" sides of the golden triangle and were shut down because of water-damaged machinery.
Telephone service was virtually
nil. The lower downtown district
was practically isolated from the rest of the world.

Water District Boundaries To Be Set Tuesday

MARTINEZ, March 18.—Completing hearings upon protests on inclusion of certain properties, the board of supervisors today set
next Tuesday as the time for adopting boundaries of a proposed eastern and central Contra Costa water district and for issuing an order directing that the district proposal be voted upon May 5, the date of the presidential primary election.

Threat that officials of the city
of Antioch might oppose the inclusion of that municipality in the district was removed this morning
when A. B. Tinnin, attorney for the city, withdrew a protest filed
last week. Tinnin informed the board that the petition was being withdrawn as a result of a mass
meeting held at Antioch Monday
night and sentiment expressed at the meeting.

The Associated Oil company also
withdrew a petition of opposition
to inclusion of its properties in the district.

The supervisors granted the petitions of about 70 persons asking exclusion of their properties, the
excluded properties totaling about 2000 acres.

Many States Hard Hit By Inundations

By UNITED PRESS
Floods throughout the East claimed 34 lives Wednesday, and it was feared the toll would rise as reports come in from isolated communities.

Heaviest loss of life occurred at Johnstown, Pa.—scene of a disastrous flood in 1889. Police there estimated 20 persons had died. Property damage soared into the millions.

MANY FLOODS
The situation, in brief, in important flood centers:
SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Families flee
lowland homes.

TROY, N. Y.—Merchants near Hudson river ordered to clear out
lower floors. River 16 feet above normal and still rising.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—Chena-
ro and Susquehanna rivers rising.
South Side residential district at risk. Many bridges closed.

CHAMBERLAND, Md.—Six thousand persons forced from homes by floods. (Continued On Page 3)

300,000 Men Called For Disaster Aid

HARRISBURG, March 18.—UP—
Nearly 300,000 men were in readiness tonight for expected calls to duty in the trail of suffering and
disaster marking the most serious
statewide flood in Pennsylvania
history.

Mobilization orders were issued
to 3000 National Guardsmen assigned to protect lives and personal property at Johnstown, Pittsburgh, Lewistown, Sunbury, Lock Haven
and Clearfield where flood waters
increased in depth.

The remaining 20,000 Pennsylvania Guardsmen were directed to prepare for active duty on a moment's notice. The State's 275,000
WPA workers were made subject
to call at any time.

Charlie Married, Shanghai Reports

SINGAPORE, (Thursday) March 18.—UP—Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard, leading lady in his latest film production, were reported married today.

Miss Goddard was said to have appeared with Chaplin in a Chinese cabaret Wednesday night, wearing
a wedding ring.
Interviewed exclusively by a United Press correspondent who asked
her whether it was true she wore
the ring, she said: "I might have been wearing it."

To Build Quarters For 10 Aged Women

MARTINEZ, March 18.—The board
of supervisors today had authorized Oscar Olsson, superintendent of the county hospital, to expend $500
in alterations at the hospital to provide quarters for ten aged women.

A roof porch is to be planned and roofed. When an addition is built to the hospital, as will be required
within a few years, the quarters to be provided by the alteration will be available as a sunroom.

McKinley Masons To Have Program Meet

McKinley Masonic lodge will entertain Masons and DeMolays at a
program meeting tonight at the Masonic hall.

The Girls' Masonic club from Berkeley will entertain with mas-
cal selections during the evening.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March
18.—UP—Fifteen thousand
homeless camped in the mud in
this dark, wet city tonight and
prayed that the Bethlehem Steel Company's big dam would hold through the night against
pounding flood waters.

Reports reached here that
the dam, 19 miles above here,
was leaking. It is the only bulwark Johnstown, where 2300
persons died in 1889 when another dam burst—has against 11,000,000,000 gallons of water.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 18.—
UP—Threat of disease and looting
waited today in the wake of a $5,000,000 flood that left Johnstown a ruined and broken city.

As water receded from the town
that was ravaged by the famous
flood of 1889, Mayor Daniel J.
Shields hurried through the streets
to assess the damage. He found 2000 persons homeless and a four-
foot high in the streets.

REBUILD CITY
"In my opinion," he said, "it will be necessary to rebuild the city."

Terror struck the city late today when it was reported the big Bethlehem Steel Company dam, 12 miles above town, had broken. Industrial operators reported the residents had fled to the hills. Later
reports said the Bethlehem dam
with a 11,000,000,000 gallon reservoir, was intact, but was leaking.
It was feared it would go out.

FEAR DISEASE
It was not floods but the grim
possibility of an epidemic that worried Shields as he called a conference to consider whether the city should be placed under National Guard rule. Looting was reported and health officials shook
their heads gravely over the prospect of disease running through the town.

The water supply was cut off
and the chief danger was from stagnation. Into Shields' conference
went Dr. James J. O'Connor, Cambria county medical director. With him were Police Chief Harry P.
Kilmer, Superintendent of State Police Lynn Adams, Brigadier General
Frederick B. Kerr, and Major General E. C. Shannon of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

STREETS GUARDED
American Legion posts organized hastily and OCO workers were brought in from outlying camps to patrol the streets until the conference decided whether to put Johnstown under military rule.
They relieved police and firemen
who had been on duty for 24 hours.
The flood swelled to a crest of 15 feet before it began to recede.
Main street bore the brunt. Today
it was a slippery, slimy lane on which no one could walk without mud oozing over his shoelaces. Mud
and stones were piled four feet
high in places.

Toy Drive Will Be Instituted By Scout Troops

Richmond Boy Scouts will open
the annual toy drive for needy
children on March 23, under the general direction of Frank Miller,
member of the executive committee.
Although the drive will be started earlier than usual this year, it will give an opportunity for every Scout troop to participate. Each Scoutmaster will have charge of
an area for the drive, and the broken toys will be turned over
to the local firemen who will repair and paint them. They will be given to needy children on Christmas.

Talk On Scouting Is Heard By Kiwanis

Professor W. B. Hanna, president of the Berkeley-Kiwanis Club, gave a talk on the benefits of Scouting
to the members of the Kiwanis club
last night.

RED LUCAS, A FORMER FIELDER, WILL SOON START HIS 12TH SEASON AS A BIG LEAGUE HURLER

OILERS NINE WINS 4 TO 6 IN FAST GAME

The Richmond Oilers lost a school baseball game yesterday to an extra inning game from the San Rafael high school club by a score of six to two at San Rafael. In so doing the local ball-hawks gave Coach Phil Hempler a case of the jitters.

Elavada was on the mound for the local club and he hurled good ball, allowing only two hits through out the contest. He retired 16 opposing batters by the strikeout route.

The two San Rafael hits came in the fourth inning when Post hit and Ruffo was safe at first on Pippo's error. Both scored when Robello singled.

Going into the last of the seventh inning the San Rafaelers were leading, Richmond came to bat. Rocha, the first man up, was safe on an error and Christopher advanced him with a single. Moore then came to the plate and smashed out a double to score both men. The next three men were out.

In the eighth inning the San Rafael team was retired in short order by the masterful chucking by Edwards.

In the last of the eighth Boljohn, who caught a whale of a game for the locals, stepped to the plate and rapped on a single. Cecchi followed with a single and Moore singled to score Boljohn. Rocha drew a walk. With the bases loaded, Moore came through with another needed single to clean the bases and win the ball game.

Friday afternoon the local boys will meet Castlemont high at the high school field. The game is free. RICHMOND 6 7 3 SAN RAFAEL 2 2 1 Edwards and Boljohn; Dreyer and Post.

RUGBY UNION LEADER, CASH ARE MISSING

for Santa Barbara, Calif., where he was to deliver the $10,000 for the Oxford rugbys to K. A. Auto, president of the United States Rugby Union with offices in Chicago.

CHECKS DRAWN Roy Tisdall, president of the Southern California Rugby Union, said two checks, drawn on the National Bank of New York for $7,500 and $2,500 had been deposited for the money.

Both checks were cashed and marked "no account." A telegram to Auto, now in Chicago, revealed he had not made an appointment to meet White in Santa Barbara. Notified of White's disappearance, Auto replied:

SENT CASH. "You have deviated. I telegraphed $500 last Wednesday in reply to his telegram. He said you (Tisdall) and he would be here Saturday on your way to New York. What shall I say to sponsors here?"

Tisdall said he and White had made no plans, so far as he knew to leave for New York or meet Auto in Chicago.

SAN JOSE LADS WILL FURNISH MAIN EVENT

Tommy Cobb, the San Jose dance-master, whose "over footwork" and equally clever boxing has made him a favorite with El Cerrito fans, will appear again in the main event in the El Cerrito boxing arena tonight. He will meet Manuel Rivera, another San Jose boy, who can handle himself with as much speed and skill as Cobb, according to Machinist Mike Dolan.

Cobb adds three decisions over Jimmy Mace of San Francisco and all three of the bouts were staged in El Cerrito's Madison Square Garden. Although each of the contests was extremely close, Cobb made his march of victory a little more conclusive with each meeting.

Louie Ramirez of San Jose, who will meet George Clifford of Oakland in the semi-finals, is a young star who shows signs of being a top-notch fighter many months. He was recently called as a substitute fighter to go in the main event against "Newsboy" Gavvas of San Francisco. Gavvas took the decision but Ramirez's showing was so good that fans demanded more of him.

It was the San Jose youth's first main event.

"Killer" Joe Grift of San Francisco in another El Cerrito favorite scheduled to appear tonight. Grift has been promised a main event position if he can handle his opponent this week, Jimmy Dolan, from Billy Wells' San Francisco stable.

Cougar Track, Boxing Teams Invade State

PULLMAN, Wash., March 18.—UP—Thirty-one Washington State College athletes left tonight for California, where they will stake their conference boxing and track championships this week-end.

Coach Ike Deeter took eight boxers to Sacramento to defend, Friday and Saturday, the Pacific Intercollegiate title W. S. C. won last year.

Expecting to drop a close dual meet to University of California Saturday, 23 track and field men entrained for Berkeley. None of the regulars were left home, despite numerous injuries suffered recently, but it was doubtful that two of the weight men would perform.

ANCIENTS HAD FULL SHARE OF VIOLENT DEATH

NEW YORK, March 18.—A statistical examination of the records of history reveals that the ancients had their full share of hazards and that the twentieth century, a present engaged with the problem of making the world safe for pedestrians, is not the only era in which man lived dangerously. From a representative sample of 275 noted persons of Greek and Roman antiquity for whom there is authentic information regarding the manner of their death, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company report that 326 died by violence—that is, 49.5 per cent, or very nearly one-half the total.

The weakness of historians thru the ages has been to tell more of battle and sudden death than of the less glamorous though really more important arts of peace. To discount this glamor, the statisticians divided a list of 101 names into statesmen, generals, and soldiers on the one hand, and philosophers, artists and authors on the other. In the former class there were 115 violent deaths out of a total of 180 for whom the cause of death is known. This is 64 per cent. The inclusion of those who died from an unrecorded cause, makes the total 222, and brings the percentage down to 52.

Among the philosophers, artists, and authors—all following peaceful vocations—there were 21 deaths by violence out of 179 deaths from all causes, known and unknown. These figures, expressed in percentages, are 22 and 12 respectively.

Only a very broad parallel of modern figures can be cited by way of comparison, the statisticians point out. In the general population today the proportion of deaths from violent causes, including accident, homicide, and suicide, is about 9.5 per cent. Among adults—over 25 years of age—the percentage is 5.5. This modern figure is not widely different from the 12 per cent noted above, as characteristic of persons following peaceful pursuits in ancient times.

Comparing the risks of the soldier, the Metropolitan statisticians take the most extreme basis of comparison of recent times, casualties during the World War. Careful estimates show the proportion of deaths in battle and from war wounds among the French was 43.8 per cent of total deaths in the entire male population over the period of the war. In Germany the corresponding proportion was 42.4 per cent. In Great Britain and Ireland, 33.8 per cent, and in Italy 22.1 per cent. These percentages are not much lower than those cited for the soldiers and statesmen of antiquity used as a sample for this comparison.

Commenting on these figures, the statisticians state: "There is, however, a very important and very fundamental difference, namely that the figures cited from recent history represent a transitory condition, which, had it been, lasted over only a limited number of years. In contrast with this the figures cited from antiquity are taken not from a concentrated period of war but from the general records of history. Surely the ancient did live dangerously."

REMOVE CAUSES TO OVERCOME ECZEMA

ECZEMA is one of the very common skin disorders. The skin becomes inflamed and exudes a moist fluid. When the exudation is marked, the condition is often called by the popular term "weeping eczema." In those cases where exudation is not particularly noticeable, dry crusts or scales will be the characteristic features, instead of the slow release of sticky fluid on the skin surface.

In overcoming eczema it is very important to realize the difference between the underlying factors which are the true causes and the factors which act as exciting causes. Anything which irritates the skin such as scratching, chafing from woolen underwear, or exposure to chemicals may serve as the exciting cause. However, these exciting causes are not particularly important. The true causes are those which arise from an impure blood stream, which build up a special irritability of the skin. Such special irritability must first be present before the exciting causes will have any marked effect. The exciting causes are local causes—the true cause is a systemic cause.

It must be remembered that eczema commonly occurs in a chronic form, that is, it has a tendency to repeat over a considerable period of time. During this period, acute flare-ups may occur, active inflammation may be superimposed on the chronic condition. In permanently overcoming eczema to the extent that the skin remains perfectly clear and normal without any sign of either chronic or acute inflammation, the treatment must be directed at overcoming the systemic causes. The blood must be cleansed and purified and sufficient attention must be given to removing those causes on the inside which are constantly exciting the skin irritation which shows on the outside.

Instead of eczema being a skin disease, it is rather a disease of the entire body in which the chief symptoms take the form of a skin irritation. An impure condition of the blood is usually the main cause and this is chiefly due to the use of an incorrect diet, lack of exercise, and constipation. The dietary causes are probably the most important ones to be considered. When, as the result of eating the wrong foods, in wrong combinations, the blood becomes impure with impurities, the excess will first be eliminated by way of the usual eliminative channels. However, as soon as the burden of impure material becomes greater than can be handled by the usual channels, an extra eliminative organ is needed. In those with a tendency to eczema, or a predisposition to it, the skin will become the extra eliminative channel. The body simply makes an effort to cleanse itself of impurities by throwing these out through the skin.

Overcoming eczema therefore depends mainly upon correcting the diet. While the use of a better diet will produce considerable improvement, it is nevertheless true that the most rapid results are obtained when the fast is taken before the restricted diet is adopted. In other words, fasting for a short time will produce a cleansing effect only obtained by dieting for a longer time. The reason for this is that during the fast, the accumulated impurities are rapidly eliminated by way of the regular channels. Instead, as dieting increases the eliminative work of the body. During the fast, elimination takes place about four or five times as quickly as it does when the patient is eating. It is this extra elimination which so quickly purifies the blood stream and thus automatically reduces the skin inflammation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
(Capacity of Stomach)
Question: Homer T. inquires: "What is the capacity of the adult stomach?"

Answer: This question is very hard to answer definitely and to the fact that the size of the stomach varies so greatly with individuals. However, the capacity of the average stomach varies between 30 and 40 pints.

"Fashionable" Disease
Question: Mrs. K. L. W. writes: "I remember reading in a magazine article which stated that high blood pressure is the fashionable disease in Europe today. I would like to know if you read the article?"

Answer: Probably you are referring to an article written by a physician in Vienna who stated that high blood pressure is one of the diseases most in fashion at this time. Undoubtedly there has been a tendency for certain diseases to receive more publicity than others, and during the time the article was written, high blood pressure and talking about them, these diseases might be said to be in "fashion."

(Acid Fruits)
Question: Jack B. asks: "Do acid fruits increase acidity of the bladder?"

Answer: Those who have cystitis or a tendency to an inflamed bladder sometimes note that using acid fruits or their juices in large amounts will temporarily increase the irritation. However, it must be remembered that the acid fruits do not reach the bladder in the same form in which they are eaten. The systemic effect of acid fruits is an alkaline effect, not an acid effect. When an acid fruit is noted, I believe it may be explained by the fact that the fruits or juices bring about an increased elimination of toxins, which takes place by way of the bladder.

MAE WEST ON FOX THEATER FRIDAY BILL

Mae West spreads her own particular brand of light in the land of the Midnight Sun in her newest picture, "Klondike Annie," a picture made just for the screen, which comes to the Fox Theater tomorrow.

The lady who made curves famous in the days of the silent screen, returning to the type of role that won her fame in "She Done Him Wrong" this time, however, she makes a formidable foe in her new leading man, Victor McLaglen, who is just as tough-and-ready as they make them and the one man who can put the blond vampire in the proper state of subjection.

"Klondike Annie" follows the famous gold rush to Alaska from San Francisco's Barbary Coast. It has the excitement and spirit of adventure of this pioneering stampede in search for gold, with the added impetus of Western influences. Mae sings four new songs, namely, "Cheer Up Little Sister," "Mister Deep Blue Sea," "Occidental Woman" and "Little Bar Butterfly."

Lucille Webster Gleason, Conway Tearle and George Walsh are members of the cast.

The other half of the program offers "Here Comes Trouble," a sea-going comedy. In a shipload of hoodlums, hoodlums, burglars and sirens Paul Kelly and Arline Judge live a romance that runs through a series of riots, wrecks and roaring action.

Jilly Pons in "I Dream Too Much" and Richard Arlen in "Harold Bell Wright's" "The Calling of Dan Mathews" will screen at the Fox for the last time today. Miss Pons has proved a sensation in her first picture and Richmond fans are enthusiastic in her praise.

Not Twins

THIS UNUSUAL picture shows the striking resemblance between Premier Keisuke Okada of Japan and his brother-in-law, Colonel Denzo Matsuo. The latter was killed by rebels in the recent uprising in Tokio in the mistaken belief he was the premier.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Senator Robinson of Arkansas has been putting across some extremely effective defense speeches for the administration lately, and he has been getting rewarded for it.

Last week he was able to hold out a decision by the entire Cabinet, including the President, without even using a pen.

The decision pertained to a large group of share-croppers, evicted from cotton plantations and compelled to live in tents and shacks in Arkansas. Organized into the Southern Tenant Farmers Union, feeling has become bitter between them and the landowners, and there have been shootings and near riots.

Appeals to relieve the tenaciousness of this situation have swamped the White House and the Labor and Agriculture Departments recently. Reports stated that the Tenant Farmers Union included both Negro and whites, who were largely disfranchised, had been warned by landowners to move on into another state on penalty of violence.

Finally the question came up at Cabinet meeting. Secretary of Labor Perkins proposed sending an arbitrator to Arkansas to smooth out differences between landlords and tenants. Other members of the Cabinet agreed, including the President.

But Vice President Garner objected. "It would embarrass Joe Robinson," he said. "We ought not to do anything without taking it up with him. He's up for re-election this fall, and that's a very delicate situation in Arkansas."

So the Cabinet, including the President, yielded.

JOHNNY AND FRANKLIN
John and Franklin Roosevelt, two youngest sons of the President, seldom go out together.

When John, a Harvard sophomore, knocks off from his studies for an evening of relaxation, he always wears evening clothes. Franklin, Harvard junior, prefers lounge attire, usually a blue or gray suit, with conspicuous white breast-pocket handkerchief.

John usually goes to the Towns Club, Franklin to the Theatrical Club. Franklin is known as the much better dancer.

BORAH VS. LANDON
Campaign advisers of Senator Borah have been urging him to turn his guns on Governor Alf Landon. Borah opens his fight for Ohio delegates this week, and his counselors are telling him that now is the time for effective strafing of his Kansas opponent, who ducked a test of strength in the Buckeye State.

Landon's apparent strategy of avoiding contests with other candidates is hotly resented in the Borah camp. They charge him with "trying to sneak up on the nomination."

"This elusiveness is not the only thing that Borah personally holds against Landon. He considers him the 'stalking horse for Wall Street,'" says that powerful business and financial group are supporting Landon's candidacy.

TWO GRIDDERS
Borah has crystallized two definite conclusions regarding Landon: One, that Landon is his chief contender for the nomination; two, that Landon is as distasteful to him as Hoover.

Senate colleagues of Borah, who are in his confidence, say that if Landon is nominated the Idahoan will not support him. In his long career, Borah has never bolted the

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, March 18.—It is a policy of that grand old paper, The New York Times, not to run feature stories on comic strips.

But, heavens, no—and you never find a recipe telling you how to bake a spinach pie. On The Times I'd be classed as a "good for nothing" and in the space where such as I might hold forth, there's probably a story giving you the whole inside on Montenegro's political situation.

Nevertheless, The Times has been running, quite unwittingly, a most poignant serial in the Public Notices section on page three. It's very brief and here it is:

Monday—Melvin—Message received family frantic. Please come home LAD.

Tuesday—Melvin—Please communicate. Strictly confidential. LEON.

Wednesday—Mel—Write or phone you are breaking my heart. MOTHER.

Thursday—Mel—Mother very sick she needs you. Phone or write. DAD.

Friday—Mel—Mother ill baby's birthday. Finances all bad. Phone, write, wire DAD.

COMPLAINTS—A friend of mine has the unenviable job of taking care of complaints in one of New York's largest department stores. He is quite used to a line of people standing before his window, each complete with an exceedingly sour pout. Usually some gent bangs an irately tied parcel under his window and snaps out, "Take back your damned hot-water bottle. It leaked all over my wife."

He hardened to that sort of thing, but with the promise of spring he remembers a strange one that came in with the silly season last year.

One of his clients was a motherly old lady with white hair. She sobbed gently as she lined edged along, and when she finally reached him the sniffling became a little more fortissimo.

"Are you the Complaints, mister?" "Yes ma'am. What can I do for you?"

Some fearful sobbing and then she went on tearfully.

"Well, last year I went to your garden department and I bought some bulbs to plant on my dear husband's grave. The lady up there promised me they would be tulips, and I went out to the cemetery yesterday and it's come up chubbs."

"What are you going to do about his case?" "I wonder," he said, breaking his silence.

"You do?" snapped Pinchot. "Then you don't know any thing about it. She will carry that district without the slightest trouble."

"So you say?" "Yes, I say. What makes you think she won't? Who are you?"

"Oh," was the quiet reply. "I am long-essheim Frank Dursey, from the 5th district in Pennsylvania."

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, March 18.—UP

Lean-jawed Harry D'Arcy, hero of yesteryear's "horse operas," now is an actor, and he likes the title better than his former one—"a star."

However, he isn't greatly excited about his comeback, because he remembers too well one roundtrip up to stardom and down to obscurity.

At one time he was one of the greatest figures in the industry. Then he began to take his "art" seriously, and slipped from public notice after the filming of the tragedy-fated picture, "Trader Horn."

For several years D'Arcy did clerical work and lived quietly on his ranch which he managed to salvage from the ruins of his spectacular career. About a year ago he was given another chance in "The Barbary Coast." His work led to a role in "Sutter's Gold" and "The Prisoner of Shark Island." After completion of the latter he signed for "The Matron of the Road" starring the child star, Jane Withers. It is now in production.

Carey has developed something of a philosophy about it all.

"When you have been at the top of the cinematic ladder and then suddenly find yourself at the bottom," he says, "just forget about climbing back up."

"Hollywood itself doesn't pay much attention to the independent westerns. But they save me an opportunity to act, and I had nothing else to do but act." So, he goes to work, and here I am—maybe on my way back.

(AUTHOR OF "GIRLS WITHOUT MEN")

Marianne Minear lives on the wrong side of the little town of Centerville. She realizes this painfully when Monte Thurst, her high-school sweetheart, deserts her for the well-to-do and socially secure Sweet Anderson. Embittered, she becomes convinced that love is cruel, and money everything, and grimly vows that, some day, she will have money. She takes a job as bookkeeper in a plumbing shop, and determines to get ahead in the business world.

Leonard Bailey, former real-estate man with literary ambitions, who works in the shop, is interested in Marianne and persuades her to study advertising with him. At Christmas time, he gives her a portable typewriter. She likes him, but he is poor, and with the young people home from college excluding her from the Christmas parties, money seems more important to her than ever.

CHAPTER XI
SPRING had come. The typewriter had turned out the last chapter of Len's first book for boys, and Marianne was clicking off Lesson Forty in her correspondence course, during an idle hour one day at the shop, when there was an unexpected interruption.

J. R. Gleason, the real-estate man from New York, who had bought the Minears' little home, came into the shop.

"I'm looking for a young man named Bailey," he began, then stopped and looked at Marianne sharply. "Why, you're the Minear girl. So you both work here?"

Marianne nodded. "Tell the bull-headed squirt I'm here and want to see him," Gleason consulted his watch impatiently.

"I expect him any minute," Marianne proffered.

As she spoke, she heard Leonard's whistle.

"Well!" he exclaimed. "If it isn't the ex-boss!"

"No, holding a grudge?" Gleason asked, as they shook hands. "Should say not. I—"

"I'm opening up a new subdivision," Gleason interrupted. "Need your ideas. Would you consider coming back?"

"Sure," Leonard replied good-naturedly. "Depending—"

"Come on back here," Gleason said, and led the way toward the back of the shop.

Marianne sat stunned by the import of the conversation. What would she do if Leonard left?

After Gleason had gone, Leonard came and said simply, "I'll be leaving the first of the month." Marianne suddenly burst into tears. Surprised, he put an arm about her.

"Why, Marianne, I never dreamed you'd care! I'll take you along." He gravely deposited a five-dollar bill on the desk. "With all my worldly goods, I thee endow," he intoned.

Laughter sparkled through Marianne's tears.

"Len, you're the limit," she reproved. "Asking a girl to marry you because you feel sorry for her. No thanks."

"But I mean it. You must know—"

"Yes, but some day there'll be a girl who—I mean—a person like me. A scheming, mercenary person to whom money means everything. Love nothing."

"You're sure of that."

"Positive. But—p-p-please let me cry."

Today's Safe Driving Hint

By The National Safety Council

INATTENTION

If there is any place in the world where silence is really golden, it is in the driver's seat. When the tongue wags, the mind lags.

Driving a car is a full-time job. It cannot safely be combined with sociability, "nicking," sight-seeing, window-shopping or day-dreaming.

Just remember that if you are traveling at even 30 miles an hour you will go 44 feet in that single second that your head is turned or that your mind lapses. If another car is approaching yours at the same speed your speed is automatically doubled as far as your relative position with that other car is concerned.

Keep your eyes on the road and your mind on your driving.

O'Brien of Richmond against his wife, Patricia.

The couple was married in Reno, September 20, 1933 and the parties of the ways came on the 14th of Friday, the 13th of this month.

Driverless Truck Lands Two In Jail

Knocked grease and crane-guns right and left, ruined an air compressor, ran over a hydraulic lift and stopped just a few feet short of the service station. The entire truckload of rock was scattered all over the landscape. Damage to the building was estimated at $1,000 by Bradford.

When State Highway Patrolmen Clarence Miller and M. L. Barbee arrived at the scene they found McGowan near the wreckage. McGowan said he was driving the car, that Smith was at the wheel. But Smith was missing. Constable M. G. Motters drove down San Pablo avenue, found Smith and returned him to the scene. Smith's clothing bore out his story that he had been dragged over the rocks by the runaway car. He said he was knocked unconscious. He denied that he was driving the car.

Questioned by the officers the two men admitted that they had two bottles of Brown Derby each and another shot of beer enroute. But both insisted that the other man was driving the car.

The patrolmen settled the problem by taking both to Martinez to face charges.

Early this morning Smith was released while McGowan was held on a charge of drunken driving where an injury was involved. Smith sustained cuts on the head and leg.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Pancreas May Be Seat of Dangerous Condition Requiring Surgery

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.
I HAVE discussed the secretions from the pancreas and how they acted. I have also stated that any accident or inflammation which allowed these secretions to flow back into the pancreas after being activated by other fluids from the bowel would cause destruction of the pancreatic tissue with acute pancreatitis.

This would cause acute pain and death unless promptly relieved by operation and drainage. This is a comparatively uncommon type of trouble, but it may be the source of distress in many cases that are reported as causing death from acute indigestion.

Two Types of Disease

There are two types of chronic pancreatitis. The one involves the tissues of the head of the pancreas and the other affects the entire gland, having much to do with the development of diabetes. The first type is usually due to an extension of inflammation from the surrounding organs. The chief cause is inflammation of the gall bladder and ducts of the liver and pancreas of gall stones in the common duct.

It develops rather slowly with pain in the middle of the upper abdomen, tenderness, bloating, and belching of gas, constipation, diarrhea, alternate and general jaundice follows, the skin taking on a pale lemon color, which gradually becomes distinctly yellow.

These symptoms also occur in gall bladder disease, but include in this case a sense of fullness. The treatment consists of a rigid diet in which fats and proteins are eliminated but little is to be gained by any treatment unless the cause is removed. Surgical removal of gall stones or an infected gall bladder with drainage of the ducts is of lasting benefit. The symptoms of chronic pancreatitis are in many respects the same as that of stomach, duodenal, and of the stomach or duodenum and inflammation of the gall bladder, gall stones and appendicitis.

Surgery Called For

Most of these conditions when acute are best treated by surgery, so even when a definite diagnosis cannot be made from the outside, surgical inspection and removal of whatever trouble presents is perfectly scientific and justifiable treatment.

It should not be delayed, because acute toxemia may develop any time with fatal results. Cancer of the pancreas is not uncommon and can be distinguished from chronic pancreatitis.

Just a few months ago, my closest physician friend, age sixty-five, was taken with vague pain and distress. I had operated on him for gall stones and he had been free from any disturbance since. He considered his trouble a slight indigestion or a threatened return of gall bladder trouble. His stomach distress was not severe so he modified his diet and had X-ray pictures taken, which showed nothing. We found tenderness and resistance over the stomach region.

He lost some flesh and his color became a little less ruddy but not jaundiced. Though the condition gradually became more annoying, he was able to continue his practice, while several physicians tried to determine what his trouble really was. After several weeks of discomfort, one night he suffered a very severe attack of pain, with vomiting and collapse. If condition became desperate in a few hours and at his request an exploratory incision was made. Cancer of the head of the pancreas was found, and he died a few days later. Death came in forty-eight hours.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "At a benefit where guests pay for the privilege of the tea table, a woman about fifteen years the senior of a woman who had come alone invited the latter to join her. Is it proper for the younger to precede the older when asked to? Also, could one respond to conversation directed to her by acquaintances nearby without seeming rude to the lady who invited her?"

ANSWER: The older lady assumed the responsibility of hostess when she asked the younger one to join her. The younger one, therefore, precedes the older one in helping herself when invited to do so. In responding to conversation of acquaintances near by, brief acknowledgment is all that would be necessary. To altogether ignore one's acquaintances under such circumstances would be extremely rude.

Profile For Today

Widow of "Mother Machree's" Author in Come-Back

By TALBOT LAKE

THE best success story is the story of a come-back. When youth rises to a peak, that may be a peak and a recession, makes good, that is more than news.

You will recall Ernest Ball, who wrote the song, "Love Me and the World is Mine" and "Mother Machree." Well, he and his wife, Maud Lambert, made up a vaudeville team. They toured the country for years, singing Mr. Ball's songs. Then Mr. Ball died, some ten or eleven years ago, and the firm of Lambert and Ball came to an end.

Mrs. Ball had never played a dramatic part in her life. She was not equipped for the stage—or so she thought—except as the partner of her musical husband. As a widow she went into retirement, the royalties on her husband's compositions giving her a good living.

Finally, Maud Lambert got tired of idleness. Her friends urged her to return to the stage. But she thought—except as the partner of her musical husband. As a widow she went into retirement, the royalties on her husband's compositions giving her a good living.

For a woman to be on the stage, as she was, for years as the partner of a song writer, then to retire and spend a month in obscurity, then to come back and do a dramatic part as Miss Lambert has done, is an inspiration to all talented women.

Miss Lambert told me recently that "Love Me and the World is Mine" and "Mother Machree" would have permitted her to live in comfort without working. But she added that since she was the part in "Tobacco Road" she is happier than she has been since Mr. Ball died.

So when you hear "Mother Machree," in a moment of discouragement, just remember that the widow of the author has made good on her own after finishing one career.

Do Not Take

Acne as Slight Skin Ailment

By JACQUELINE HUNT

ONE thing that you mothers do not take half seriously enough is acne! You may have forgotten how you felt when you were very young and your skin broke out with those ugly pimples. But if you will just think back you will remember that you felt terribly unhappy—and so does your daughter, if you let them happen to her! Mothers should be too sensible to say, "Leave it alone, it will clear up in time," but many of them do say just that, even in these enlightened days.

Please do not be so short-sighted. If there are a lot of pimples and they do not respond rather quickly to treatment, take your daughter to the best specialist you know. See that she has the right diet, sufficient sleep, exercise, and fresh air. Most important of all, see that her troubled young skin is kept clean.

Scrub and scrub. Especially before retiring, the skin should be given a thorough soap and water cleansing to remove all of the make-up, oil, perspiration and dirt that have accumulated during the day. If not removed, this material clogs the pores and causes blackheads, which in turn may become infected and develop into painful and unsightly pimples.

Use cold water on the face after the skin has been cleansed. During the day encourage your daughter to use a healing, soothing lotion that leaves a light powdery film to protect the skin. She should avoid regular make-up if possible until the acne has cleared up.

Frequent bathing helps insure the thorough cleanliness that hastens the improvement in the most stubborn case of acne. Teach your teen age daughter the value of deodorants, deodorizing soaps and anti-perspirants, for no young girl can hope to be popular and self-confident unless she is dainty and sweet. This is the time to learn to use mouth washes, too.

Remember how girls love things—just possessing them. You will encourage all of the good beauty habits and health habits by letting each child have her own toilet articles, her own box of powder and her own bottle of eau de Cologne or toilet water to use after her bath.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I have been using two kinds of brightening rinses for my hair. The first was not entirely satisfactory and I have been trying one that I found excellent. My hair seems dry and has a peculiar metallic color about it. Could the rinse be the cause of this?"—Mrs. Helen G.

It is possible that using one bleach after you were accustomed to another has caused the peculiar color and texture of your hair. After all, most brightening preparations do contain rather strong chemicals. You must be wise to discontinue both for a while and have two or three hot oil shampoos. Then if your hair is light in color I would suggest a rinse of strained lemon juice or camomile tea. These are quite harmless and you might find them more satisfactory.

Split and broken fingernails are often caused by filing the nails too far into the cuticle at the sides in an attempt to accent the pointed or deeply oval shape of the nails. Leave a narrow margin of white at the sides of your nails and do not touch the cuticle.

Nails get little stimulation, so it is a good plan to buff them occasionally to keep them flexible. It is also a good idea to give your nails an occasional holiday from make-up. Just as you do your face at bedtime, always after shaping your nails soak them in warm olive oil for three minutes, massage each one and scrub with soap and warm water. Dry thoroughly and then apply your nail polish. When the nail polish is set, apply a finishing cream to the hands and work a little cuticle oil around the rims of the nails, to keep them healthy and beautifully smooth.

Watch Your Man

When you dine out with your husband, notice what he orders for himself. Better than that, find out what he orders when lunching in town by himself or with his business friends. You may find out some of his food preferences that will make your housekeeping easier and your married life a success.

Covers for Mattresses

The practical homemaker buys or makes slip covers for mattresses. These keep mattresses clean and new looking. After all, it is easier to launder a slip cover than have a soiled mattress cleaned.

Mushrooms require such gentle handling, that unless they are dirty, they should not be washed. Water is said to affect the flavor and to toughen them.

Should Women Go Back to the Kitchen? The Evidence Says No

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

THOSE who believe that sending wage-earning women back to the kitchen will relieve the unemployment situation need to take "a long range view of the situation," according to Dr. Virginia Gildersleeve, Dean of Barnard College, who has just celebrated her twenty-fifth year in that position.

If that should happen the work women used to do in the home, such as baking and canning, will go back with them, thus increasing unemployment," says Miss Gildersleeve.

Then there will be an economic problem, that of making the maiden aunt welcome at the family fireside, after her job has been taken away from her.

There is no danger of the American woman allowing herself to be railroaded back into the kitchen, according to the dean, who should know a good deal about the workings of the feminine mind.

One of the most interesting sidelights on the modern woman, the one still in college, is that she is not a feminist, not actively or even consciously.

"Girls seem to take their position for granted, are bored by any reference to feminism, and wonder why anyone clamors about 'rights' when women have the vote," Miss Gildersleeve explained.

Get at the Facts

"It is frightfully important to cut through the 'guff and ballyhoo' and get at the facts," she declared to a group of Washington Heights women recently. "Now that the battle for women's political rights and opportunities is definitely won, women must show themselves worthy of these privileges, buckle down and do first-rate work in a practical way."

"More than anything else," she went on, "we have to get women to do first-rate work, not as women, but as human beings. A few more Florence Sabins and Mrs. Curies would do more to strengthen the position of women today than any clamor or campaign to preserve women's 'rights' or prevent discrimination against women in public life."

To think straight and to be a good neighbor are the essential obligations of the modern woman, according to Dr. Gildersleeve. To think straight and to be a good neighbor, we must add, is also the essential obligation of everyone.

In her many discussions of woman's place in the world, you may remember that Mrs. Roosevelt made a distinction by saying that she believes that women, as women, have a distinct contribution to make to the world, and that women should and do interest themselves in matters which are of greatest interest to them. She does not say that their interests should be such and so but implies that women must add to the form and have similar interests.

Women's Rights

Both these outstanding women believe firmly in the rights of women, as individuals, to work or not to work, irrespective of their circumstances. Both feel that the work-to-the-kitchen movement is not making much progress. Mrs. Roosevelt has admitted that as an emergency measure it might sometimes be necessary for a woman whose husband is earning enough for the family to give up her job. She maintains, however, that it is the individual's right to decide this issue.

Possibly one reason women do not get together on such a platform is that so many want to work only when, as, and how they feel disposed to work. They want to feel free about it.

It is a mistake for the world to infer that a married woman works merely for the fun of it, or that she holds down a job in order to have more money to spend foolishly.

Cautious how tenaciously the anti-feminists hold to this theory, knowing all the while that nearly every family is now called upon to provide for some less fortunate member of their tribe. Husbands are not anxious to take on the support of their wives' relative, although they do it ungrudgingly in thousands of cases. When such a condition arises, which is frequently, self-respecting wives much prefer to shoulder their own responsibilities.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

Children First—Of Course!

The conventional idea of a good life today is that the good of children comes first. However, if the good of the children means the sacrifice of the father or the mother to the point that they cannot provide either support or care, where is the family? What is needed is a balance.

Bonnet Time

Is Straw Time Girls Should Cook For Family, Under Supervision

By IRENE VAIL

NEW YORK—Pardon our seeming pre-occupation with the so-called Easter bonnet. It's a seasonal theme, nor is the term misleading. Since Easter finds women actively bonnet-conscious, their bonnets may have everything in them—even a bee.

The usual choice runs to ribbon and flowers. In straw there's one most stubborn case of acne. Teach your teen age daughter the value of deodorants, deodorizing soaps and anti-perspirants, for no young girl can hope to be popular and self-confident unless she is dainty and sweet. This is the time to learn to use mouth washes, too.

Remember how girls love things—just possessing them. You will encourage all of the good beauty habits and health habits by letting each child have her own toilet articles, her own box of powder and her own bottle of eau de Cologne or toilet water to use after her bath.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I have been using two kinds of brightening rinses for my hair. The first was not entirely satisfactory and I have been trying one that I found excellent. My hair seems dry and has a peculiar metallic color about it. Could the rinse be the cause of this?"—Mrs. Helen G.

It is possible that using one bleach after you were accustomed to another has caused the peculiar color and texture of your hair. After all, most brightening preparations do contain rather strong chemicals. You must be wise to discontinue both for a while and have two or three hot oil shampoos. Then if your hair is light in color I would suggest a rinse of strained lemon juice or camomile tea. These are quite harmless and you might find them more satisfactory.

Split and broken fingernails are often caused by filing the nails too far into the cuticle at the sides in an attempt to accent the pointed or deeply oval shape of the nails. Leave a narrow margin of white at the sides of your nails and do not touch the cuticle.

Nails get little stimulation, so it is a good plan to buff them occasionally to keep them flexible. It is also a good idea to give your nails an occasional holiday from make-up. Just as you do your face at bedtime, always after shaping your nails soak them in warm olive oil for three minutes, massage each one and scrub with soap and warm water. Dry thoroughly and then apply your nail polish. When the nail polish is set, apply a finishing cream to the hands and work a little cuticle oil around the rims of the nails, to keep them healthy and beautifully smooth.

Short Cuts

Cooking experts do not recommend cutting away any part of the mushroom in preparing it for cooking, unless obviously tough. Most of the toughness is in the end of the stem. This can be trimmed off easily and without much waste, as a rule. Do not peel the caps of mushrooms, unless you have to.

A point in favor of fresh fish is that it is less stimulating than meat. Also, it is easily digested, and extremely valuable in the treatment of certain diseases where meat must be eliminated from the diet.

It is not necessary to have a soggy undercrust in a pie with a fruit or cream filling. Apply a coating of raw egg white to the undercrust before adding the filling.

Mushrooms require such gentle handling, that unless they are dirty, they should not be washed. Water is said to affect the flavor and to toughen them.

Dishes for Today

For the Ladies Family, Under Supervision

By JUDITH WILSON

LITTLE girls usually love to cook and mothers should encourage them to do so as often as possible. Let the children prepare something for the family, meal occasionally, and let them prepare their own school lunches and the refreshments for their own parties.

Of course mother must supervise the first efforts of the small cook. She must teach her the importance of assembling all of the baking dishes, measuring spoons, mixing bowls and cups that will be needed and all of the ingredients before she starts.

The second thing that the small cook must learn is to follow all measurements exactly if she wants to insure the success of the finished product. Give her simple recipes to begin with and read over the recipe several times to be sure that she understands the directions.

Before cooking anything, the little girl should understand that her hair should be tidied, her hands scrubbed until they are pink and a clean apron worn over her dress. Here are some recipes for things the little girl of eight or ten should be able to make as well as mother.

Cup Cakes

Measure 1 1/2 cups flour, then sift and measure again, putting the extra flour back in the bin. Sift the flour again with 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt into a mixing bowl. Measure 2 tablespoons shortening and put into a cup in hot water to soften. Break 2 eggs into a big mixing bowl and beat adding 1 cup sugar a little at a time. Pour in 1/2 cup milk and add the flour mixture a little at a time, stirring vigorously with a big mixing spoon. When thoroughly blended, add the softened shortening and 1 teaspoon vanilla, lemon or almond extract.

Grease muffin tins with softened butter, sprinkle with flour and shake them out so there is just a thin lining of flour to prevent sticking and give the little cakes a smooth surface. Now take the egg beater and beat until the cake batter is very light and smooth. Spoon it into the greased muffin pans, filling them about 2/3 full. Bake in a moderate oven, one that is about 350 degrees Fahrenheit by the cooking thermometer, for 20 minutes or until the little cakes are done. Frost with confectioner's sugar frosting after the cakes have cooled slightly.

Jack Horner Salad

To make 4 servings of salad, you will need 12 large prunes. Wash them and soak overnight in cold water. When you are ready to make the salad, cut the core from a small head of lettuce and let water from the faucet run into the cavity to loosen and cleanse the leaves. Shake off the excess water and put into a damp cloth in the refrigerator. Drain the prunes in a colander. Split them from end to end, remove the pits. Measure 4 tablespoons peanut butter and put into a dish with 1 package cream cheese, and 1 teaspoon mayonnaise. Mix well and stuff the prunes with this mixture. Arrange nests of lettuce on cold plates, arrange 3 prunes in the center of each nest.

Let the rain pitter-patter—and it won't bother Maureen O'Sullivan when she is wearing her new yellow raincoat with wide brim hat to match. Her galoshes are white with fur trim.

was gunning up the cards, the real leaders of the party had gone on record as being in favor of an un-instructed delegation and made public proclamation of that fact. As late as last Sunday the Republican Assembly, composed of the party's most influential members for the third time went on record in favor of an un-instructed delegation.

That expression was really the voice and desire of the party and was followed Tuesday by the naming of an unpledged delegation.

The Merriam-Hearst combination should not be permitted to determine our political destinies and unless we very badly misjudge the temper of the rank and file of the party, I do not believe they will. I have no quarrel with Mr. Hearst, but believe he should confine his activities to his own party.

We have no quarrel with Governor London, for I sincerely believe him to be an able man and it would cause no violation of principle or political belief to vote for him. Frankly he would have been much better off to have declined the help of Merriam, for we are reluctantly forced to the conclusion that it is no political asset or source of strength.

On the other hand we deeply regret the interjection of himself into a situation that was none of his business. The reason for this pronounced regret is that on his hand-picked ticket are several of good friends in both the southern and northern part of the state and there is one thing I do not like, and that is being forced into the position where I am forced to vote against them. However I am sure they are broad enough to understand, and that no discordant note will mar our relationship.

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE ARE VAGUE

unexpectedly that she had given no matter no thought and could not answer the question.

Her other statement meant an end of her confinement was taken to the sheriff's office by her attorneys, Thomas M. Casper and Robert Collins of Richmond and presented to the deputy on duty.

Prior to leaving the sheriff's office Mrs. McCord shook hands with her attorneys and said: I want to thank you a million times for all you have done for me.

COURT HEARING BRIEF

The court proceedings yesterday were very brief, markedly in contrast to the previous four occasions when attorneys for the defense and prosecution were offering arguments for and against a new trial.

Judge Bray had been hearing testimony in the case of the Contra Costa Retail Grocers' Association, the Contra Costa Milk Dealers' Association and William Lutz against the Hagstrom Stores, Inc., which had been running its bulky argumentative way for two days. A tactical recess was called and the McCord matter was taken up.

AGREED FOR ONCE

It was the time fixed for setting a date for a new trial. Attorney Carlson informed the court that the notice of appeal from the ruling granting Mrs. McCord a new trial had the effect of staying all proceedings until that matter was determined by the higher court so the question of setting a date for a new trial would of necessity be held in abeyance.

"Does the district attorney's office agree with counsel's statement?" Judge Bray inquired.

"Yes," said Deputy District Attorney Rex Poyer, who was the sole representative of the district attorney's office present.

"Well, I am pleased," rejoined the jurist, "that this is one instance in which the opposing attorneys and the court can agree."

BADLY NOT OPPOSED

The motion for the adjournment of Mrs. McCord to wait went unopposed and a bond was presented in the sum of $1,000, the sureties on which were the father of the defendant and Attorney Carlson.

PLANS ARE VAGUE

It is said that Mrs. McCord will take a much needed rest, but after that her plans are vague as to the immediate future. She cannot go anywhere permanent until the district attorney's appeal is passed upon, but if the higher court upholds the decision of Judge Bray, it is hardly likely that any other charge will be lodged against her. In that event she intends, some of her close friends, say, to go east and follow the same line of endeavor in which she was engaged, namely social service work, at the time she was indicted by the grand jury in January 1935.

Police Seeking Stolen Machine

Kemp told officers that the car was stolen from his parking place at the Salt Water station.

MARTINEZ, March 18.—Warnus against the danger to California's tax structure in the proposed repeals of the sales and income taxes, to be voted upon in November, was given last night by Von T. Ellsworth, chairman of the tax research department of the California Farm Bureau Federation, in speaking at the meeting of the Alhambra Farm Center.

"If these taxes are repealed, we will be in worse condition than in 1930," Ellsworth said.

The Farm Bureau is organizing a statewide campaign to fight the repeal proposals.

In pointing out the dangers of the proposals, Ellsworth said that it is estimated the income tax will return the state $10,000,000 annually.

"The repealer," he said, "not only would repeal this measure but it could erect a prohibition against the legislature again adopting such a proposal. It would tie the hands of our legislators, which is poor procedure."

U. C. Regents To Be Re-Appointed

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—UP.—Reappointment of Chester H. Rowell, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle and Garret W. McEnerney, San Francisco lawyer as regents of the University of California, was indicated by Governor P. F. Merriam today.

"Formal appointment of the two men will be announced immediately upon my return to Sacramento," the governor commented.

COLONEL HENRY BRECKINRIDGE, New York lawyer, assistant Secretary of War in the Wilson cabinet, who will be a candidate in the Maryland Presidential primaries as an Anti-New Dealer. By his candidacy conservative Anti-New Deal Democrats hoped to check a move for a pledged Roosevelt convention delegation.
